58. Provide any other information that may reflect positively or negatively on your candidacy, or which you believe should be disclosed in connection with consideration of you for nomination for the position you seek. This information may include how your life experiences have affected or influenced the kind or type of judge you have been or plan to be.

In the past, I wrote of the influence my father had on the type of lawyer I wanted to be and the type of lawyer I was, writing of growing up in the law library, back when there were such things, in my father's law firm. I would pull the books from the shelves, pretending that I was a great lawyer like my father, preparing to argue a landmark case. That was in the fifth grade. As a child, I thought my father was the greatest attorney. As an adult, I still believed that, but now I understand that it was not his skill at arguing a case before a jury which made him great, but his greatness was seen in his approach to his practice and his treatment of his clients. Even after practicing for over forty years, he approached every case as if it was the most important case and every client as if he or she was the most important client. As an attorney, I tried to mimic the very best attributes that I learned from my father. I treated my clients with respect. I approached every case, no matter the size, no matter the issue, very seriously, striving to be prepared for any scenario in the courtroom. I was sensitive to the fact that my clients entrusted me with some of the most important aspects of their lives—children, homes, finances, their futures. I respected the trust which they placed in me. As a judge, I recognize now that there are few attorneys who practice law like my father and lawyers from his generation. The practice of law has changed over the years, as has the approach to the practice of law. I recognize that while change may be difficult, sometimes it is necessary. I have had to adjust certain expectations within the courtroom, but I still believe it is imperative that the court uphold the integrity of the legal system and apply the rule of law fairly and impartially. Oftentimes, the application of the rule of law is misunderstood, but a failure to apply the rules and the law is a failure to the system and a failure to the administration of justice. I have always been a rule follower, and as a judge that has not changed. It is my earnest hope that litigants and their representatives leave my courtroom knowing they were treated respectfully and fairly by an ethical and knowledgeable judge.
