I use Instagram to stay in touch with my children, relatives and friends. I use Twitter to keep up with sports. Since I have been a Family Court Judge, I do not think my use on any of the sites has been impacted. Of course, I am willing to delete all accounts if necessary.

58. Provide any other information that may reflect positively or negatively on your candidacy, or which you believe should be disclosed in connection with consideration of you for nomination for the position you seek. This information may include how your life experiences have affected or influenced the kind or type of judge you have been or plan to be.

While I disclosed the following when I first applied six (6) years ago, I still feel it is very relevant today. When I was 12 years old, I was a voracious reader. I would read anything I could get my hands on. It did not matter whether it was Sports Illustrated, The Hardy Boys, or even World Book Encyclopedia, I read it. It was during this period that I discovered F. Lee Bailey. I became fascinated with his life as a Criminal Defense lawyer and specifically, his defense of Sam Sheppard. It was amazing how he successfully got a not-guilty verdict after Sheppard had previously been convicted of murdering his wife. I read The Defense Never Rests and For the Defense. After reading those books, as well as a few others, I was determined to become a criminal lawyer. I wanted to get justice for my clients. I knew that was my calling. Fast forward fifteen (15) years and I graduate from the University of South Carolina School of Law. At that time, I had no idea what kind of practice I wanted. Fortunately, Ken Baker hired me in December 1993 and he allowed me to handle a variety of matters. That is when I had my first experience with Family Court. I realized then that I enjoyed helping people solve their domestic problems. I believe part of that was due to the fact that my parents had divorced about a year earlier and their divorce was not amicable. I wanted to fix things that I could not with my parents. That carried over when I opened my own practice in 1995.

In addition, just a year prior to my serving as Family Court Judge, I had the experience of running into a former juvenile client. Samantha (name changed to protect her identity) was an assistant manager at a restaurant and she saw me walk through the door. After I was seated, she made her way over to our table. While I recognized her face, I could not place her name or how I knew her. She then told me her name and I immediately knew. Samantha was a troubled teen who had no respect for authority and she was essentially kicked out of her home by her parents. She ended up committing various crimes and spent some time at DJJ. I was appointed to represent her. This was approximately twenty-six (26) years ago. Samantha told me that she had turned her life around and had two (2) children of her own. She said she was doing well and even had a good relationship with her parents. She then said "thank you." I was taken aback and asked her why. She stated that throughout her troubles, I was the one who stood by her and did not abandon her. Needless to say, I was floored. I did not realize what kind of an impact I could have on someone. It's those moments which make me realize what an even bigger impact I can have as a judge. While I know I cannot save every troubled teen, I can try to save as many as possible.

Over the past five (5) years as a Family Court Judge, I have prided myself on being courteous and kind to the attorneys and litigants who appear before me. It is important to me that those who appear in my courtroom leave feeling that they were heard and were treated with respect. I also strive to constantly look out for the best interests of our most vulnerable, our children. In fact, I, along with other judges and attorneys, are trying to find better solutions on issues impacting children involved with Department of Juvenile Justice, Department of Social Services, and Department of Mental Health. We have been holding meetings with various stakeholders in an effort to foster better communication and cooperation between these agencies.
