19. If the answer to question 18 is yes, describe or list five of your most significant orders or opinions and give the citations if they were reported. Also, list citations to any appellate review of these orders or opinions.
 - (a) Richard T. Goldsmith v. Hailey W. Efird, Op. No. 2023-UP-377 (S.C. Ct. App. filed November 28, 2023). In this case the Court of Appeals affirmed my decision to allow the non-custodial mother to have extended visitation as the extended visitation was in the child's best interests. After considering the facts, I attempted to craft a visitation schedule to accommodate and protect the child. The unique facts of the case precipitated the decision to grant the Mother more time with the child than many customary schedules. This case was a great reminder that each case has unique facts which must be considered carefully.

- (b) Wesley Lynn Flowers v. Heather Nicole Stephens, 2022-DR-42-2400. This action was brought by the father of the minor child to establish visitation and other related relief. I heard the Temporary Hearing in the matter. At that hearing, I ordered a step-up type schedule wherein the father would have the opportunity to work up to a standard-type visitation schedule. The mother was opposed to the visitation. I later found out that the father followed the order and established a good relationship with the child. Eventually the parties reconciled and are currently raising the child together. This is a great example of the importance of each step of the litigation process. Temporary Hearings and Temporary Orders matter. They set the tone and pave the way for the final resolution.
 - (c) Virginia R. McCall v. Brett W. McCall, 2020-DR-42-0939. In this matter, the pro se Plaintiff filed a custody modification action. As the parties could not come to agreement, the case ended with a four-day trial. This was my first lengthy trial with a pro se litigant.
 - (d) Jayro Sales Khan v. Anna Marie Cauble, 2023-DR-11-0166. This case presented an interesting question regarding subject matter jurisdiction. There were potential UCCJEA issues as well.
 - (e) John Doe et al v. Sally Roe et al, 2023-DE-11-0380. This was an action for termination of parental rights. This was a lengthy trial with two pro se Defendants. Termination of parental rights is a difficult matter regardless of the facts of the case. This was a challenging trial, but the decision was obvious after hearing the testimony. The child's best interests were served with the termination of the parental rights.
20. List all courts in which you have been admitted to practice and list the dates of your admission. Give the same information for administrative bodies that require a special admission to practice.
