AGENCY’S DISCUSSION AND ANALYSIS

FY16 was an important year for the state’s comprehensive school readiness initiative, as SC First Steps oversaw the further expansion of private four-year-old kindergarten, the improved performance of the federal BabyNet early intervention program, participated in the House Legislative Oversight process, and was awarded $18.5 million in federal Early Head Start grant funding. Below readers will find brief summaries of each of First Steps’ major programs, along with a discussion of reauthorization, “Risk Assessment and Mitigation Strategies,” and restructuring recommendations proposed by the House Legislative Oversight Committee in May of 2016.

Local First Steps Partnerships:

First Steps 46 independent, non-profit grantee partnerships are the heart of the First Steps initiative, meeting local school readiness needs statewide using both public and private funding to expand services in the areas of Health, Family Strengthening, Early Intervention, Child Care, Early Childhood Education and School Transition. Citizens are invited to view details of their local partnerships in the agency’s 2015 Annual Report, located at <http://scfirststeps.com/annual-reports> and in the agency’s e-Spotlight Newsletter, located at <http://scfirststeps.com/first-steps-e-spotlight-2>.

During the 2016 legislative session, lawmakers took important steps toward strengthening their support of these local partnerships – particularly in the Abbeville plaintiff communities - allocating $1.4 million to raise base funding from $138K to $200K per partnership and appropriating the funds necessary to provide new technical assistance resources from the state office.

First Steps 4K:

With ten years of success expanding publicly-funded prekindergarten in private, faith- and community-based settings, the First Steps 4K program continues to thrive, serving more than 2,400 children in 200+ private classrooms during FY16.

According to a recent analysis by the SC Education Oversight Committee, students participating in the state’s publicly-funded prekindergarten programs are demonstrating improved academic outcomes as late as middle school. When matched against a comparison group of non-participant children in participating school districts, 4K students outperformed their matched peers in English Language Arts at every grade level, closing 43.8% of the achievement gap (between non-participant students and all students) at 6th grade. Similar results were noted in mathematics, with 4K students closing 38.4% of the 6th grade achievement gap.

The graphs below depict this performance in both subjects, with participating students noted in red and their matched peers in black.

BabyNet:

BabyNet is South Carolina’s interagency, early intervention program for infants and toddlers with disabilities and developmental delays. Enabled under Part C of the federal Individuals with Disabilities Education Act, BabyNet provides early childhood special education services to the families of eligible children, designed to prepare each for school success.

The program is funded with a combination of state appropriations and federal grant funds, with current partners including SC First Steps (which serves as the state’s designated “lead agency” and oversees local system point of entry offices), the SC Department of Disabilities and Special Needs, the SC School for the Deaf and the Blind, the SC Department of Health and Human Services, and hundreds of contracted service providers across the state.

Since the program’s inception under the SC Department of Health and Environmental Control in 1991, South Carolina’s BabyNet program has struggled to comply with strict federal guidelines around the program’s operation, becoming the first state in the nation to enter into a federal compliance agreement with the United States Department of Education in 2003. Citing the program’s challenged performance and inappropriate placement (BabyNet continues to be misidentified as a health program by many SC stakeholders), Governor Mark Sanford designated SC First Steps to School Readiness as the program’s new lead agency in January of 2010.

At the time of its transfer, the program was insolvent (relying on one time federal funds from the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act to pay its rapidly rising service costs) and had recently been cited by the SC State Auditor as failing to maintain a system of general supervision. As a support to the new lead agency, lawmakers requested a retrospective review by the SC Legislative Audit Council, designed to identify areas for improvement within the struggling system.

Since 2010 First Steps – working in near weekly collaboration with national technical assistance resources – has made significant strides toward bringing the BabyNet system into federal compliance, implementing the LAC’s recommendations to the agency, reestablishing the grant’s required system of general supervision, adding efficiency and accountability measures which successfully reversed the substantial fiscal deficits inherited from DHEC in both January of 2010 and July of 2011 (when all remaining front-line BabyNet employees were transferred to First Steps), improving monitoring and supervision of service providers, creating a detailed interagency financial reporting structure, and replacing the system’s outdated data system with one capable of collecting key data required by the federal government.

One longstanding compliance challenge for the state has been the federal government’s requirement that all eligible children proceed from initial referral, through an eligibility evaluation of the child and family, to the development of a formal Individualized Family Service Plan (IFSP, the infant-toddler equivalent of the K-12 system’s Individualized Education Plan or IEP) within 45 days from initial contact. With a small frontline staff charged with processing roughly 10,000 client referrals annually, the state has been perpetually challenged in its efforts to meet this compliance deadline.

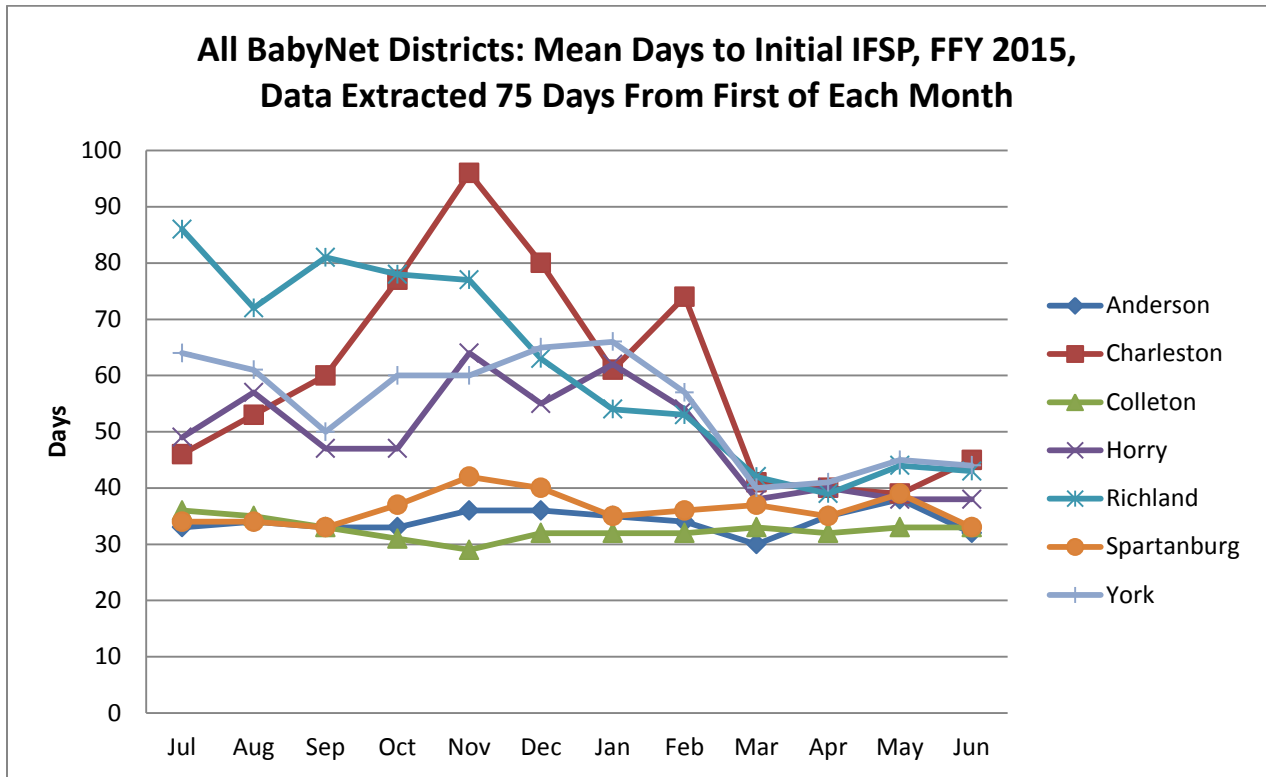

With the support of the General Assembly – which appropriated $1.1 million and 23 new FTEs to the effort during FY16 – First Steps has deployed new staff across the state designed to address this concern. Under First Steps’ leadership the system is now averaging less than 45 days in each statewide office for the first time in the program’s 20+ year history.

Additionally, a diverse, interagency “BabyNet Think Tank” was seated during FY16 to analyze the system’s current weaknesses and address potential solutions. The group’s report to the General

Assembly – which included a comprehensive plan for bringing the system into full federal compliance - was published in December 2015 and included funding recommendations, a number of which were acted upon by the General Assembly during the 2016 legislative session. The committee’s findings and comprehensive plan can be reviewed at: <http://bit.ly/2cNyqBD>

The chart below depicts the improved performance of BabyNet’s regional intake offices, with each averaging less than the required 45 days since March of 2016.

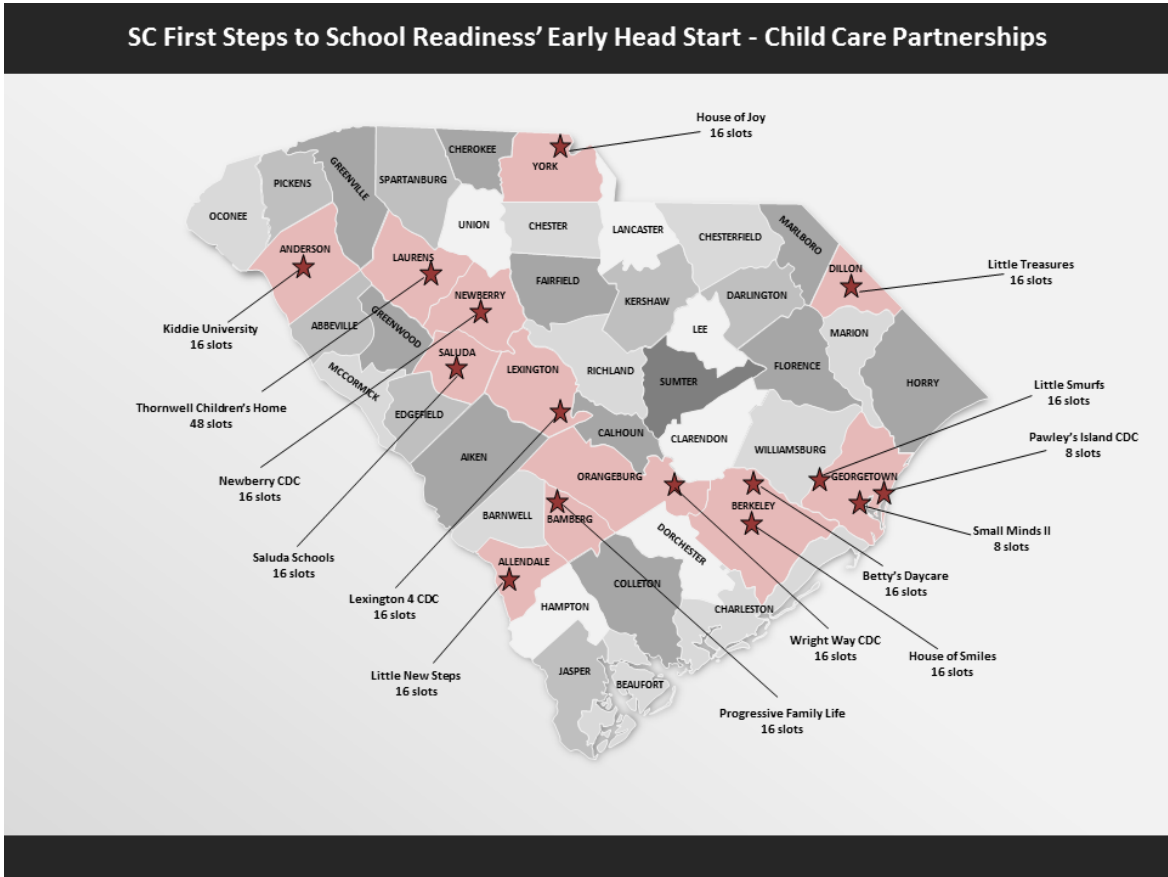

Early Head Start:

In the fall of 2014, the federal Office of Head Start announced an innovative expansion funding opportunity designed to extend the Early Head Start (EHS) model into private child care facilities. With a decade of success forging similar partnerships in the state’s 4-year-old kindergarten program, First Steps crafted an application designed to expand EHS services into 12 underserved South Carolina Counties: Allendale, Anderson, Bamberg, Berkeley, Dillon, Georgetown, Laurens, Lexington, Newberry, Orangeburg, Saluda, and York.

In February of 2015, the agency was awarded $18.5 million over five years (one of the nation’s 20 largest grants) to extend services to 254 low income infants and toddlers in these high need communities. During FY16, the agency completed the grant’s start-up phase, which entailed hiring staff and identifying, contracting with, and training 15 private child care partners and initiated service to families, reaching full enrollment in August 2016. The Early Head Start model couples a high-quality early childhood classroom experience for low-income infants and toddlers with comprehensive family support services. In August the agency applied for additional EHS funding to expand this service to an additional 163 children.

House Legislative Oversight Committee:

First Steps was among the first agencies reviewed by the House Legislative Oversight Committee, with the Committee’s Education and Cultural Subcommittee initiating its 15 month investigative process in February of 2015 and the full committee adopting its report in May of 2016. The purpose of the Legislative Oversight process – which will review all state agencies on a proposed seven-year cycle – is to determine whether individual programs of state government should be “continued, curtailed or eliminated.” At the conclusion of their detailed review, the Committee unanimously adopted a report affirming the value of First Steps and recommending that the agency’s programming should be continued under its auspices. Because its placement is a gubernatorial prerogative under federal law, the Committee made no recommendation regarding the placement of BabyNet. The committee’s report can be viewed at <http://bit.ly/2cNvVPL>

Reauthorization:

First Steps’ original enabling legislation included a “sunset clause” which requires the periodic reauthorization of this statute. With the agency’s current authorization set to expire on July 1, 2016, the SC House of Representatives unanimously passed H.4774 – which would have extended this authorization for an additional two years - on April 21, 2016. While the bill was reported favorably out of Senate Education, it did not receive a hearing by the full Senate and First Steps was reauthorized for a single year by Proviso 117.128.

(Note: Agencies are required to include the following “Risk Assessment and Mitigation Strategies,” identifying the potential most negative impact on the public as a result of the agency’s failure to accomplish its goals and objectives. Each must include three options for what the General Assembly could do to resolve the issue before it becomes a crisis.)

Risk Assessment and Mitigation Strategies:

Should First Steps fail to meet its goals and objectives, South Carolina’s young children will be less prepared for success in school and life. In order to mitigate and prevent this negative and costly impact, First Steps will require the ongoing support of its public and private partners and the SC General Assembly. In order for the agency to continue to support the needs of the state’s children and families, First Steps requires a durable, statutory reauthorization. Failure to secure a multi-year extension of the initiative’s enabling legislation will result in instability and the continued loss of resources from private and philanthropic sources.

To resolve this issue before it reaches a point of crisis, the General Assembly could:

- 1) Honor the findings of the House Legislative Oversight Committee, which determined in May of 2016 – following a year-long investigatory study - that the programs of First Steps should be continued under the agency’s existing structure. A durable reauthorization for First Steps would entail (at minimum) a multi-year period sufficient for the agency to execute the Board’s strategic plan as detailed in the pages to follow.
- 2) Consider funding the remaining recommendations of the 2015 “BabyNet Think Tank.” This diverse group of public and private stakeholders detailed a comprehensive plan for bringing the state’s early intervention system into compliance with federal regulations. With funding from the SC General Assembly, the system has demonstrated significant progress, which First Steps desires to maintain and extend.
- 3) Consider expanding the resources of the local First Steps Partnerships. As the state considers its response to the ongoing Abbeville County School District et. al. vs. South Carolina school equity funding lawsuit, policy makers will be wise to take stock of scientific research suggesting that the years of early childhood – and particularly those from birth to three – play a significant role in determining the long-term academic success of young children. This is particularly true of young children in poverty.

Restructuring Recommendations:

Agency leadership concurs with the recommendations of the House Legislative Oversight Committee, adopted on May 4, 2016. In addition to endorsing the FY16 proviso requests presented by the agency, lawmakers adopted two sets of recommendations, dividing these into actions to be taken by the SC General Assembly and actions that can be made internally within the agency. These recommendations are quoted below:

The Subcommittee recommends that the General Assembly make the following revisions to state law:

- Establish a common assessment tool for school readiness for use within the public and private sectors and commit to its use over a period of years;
- Appropriate resources to develop an interagency, early childhood data system;
- Appropriate all BabyNet funds to the BabyNet lead agency; and
- Take steps to ensure greater equity in 4K provider funding, to include teacher pay and the exploration of tax and other incentives to participating private providers.

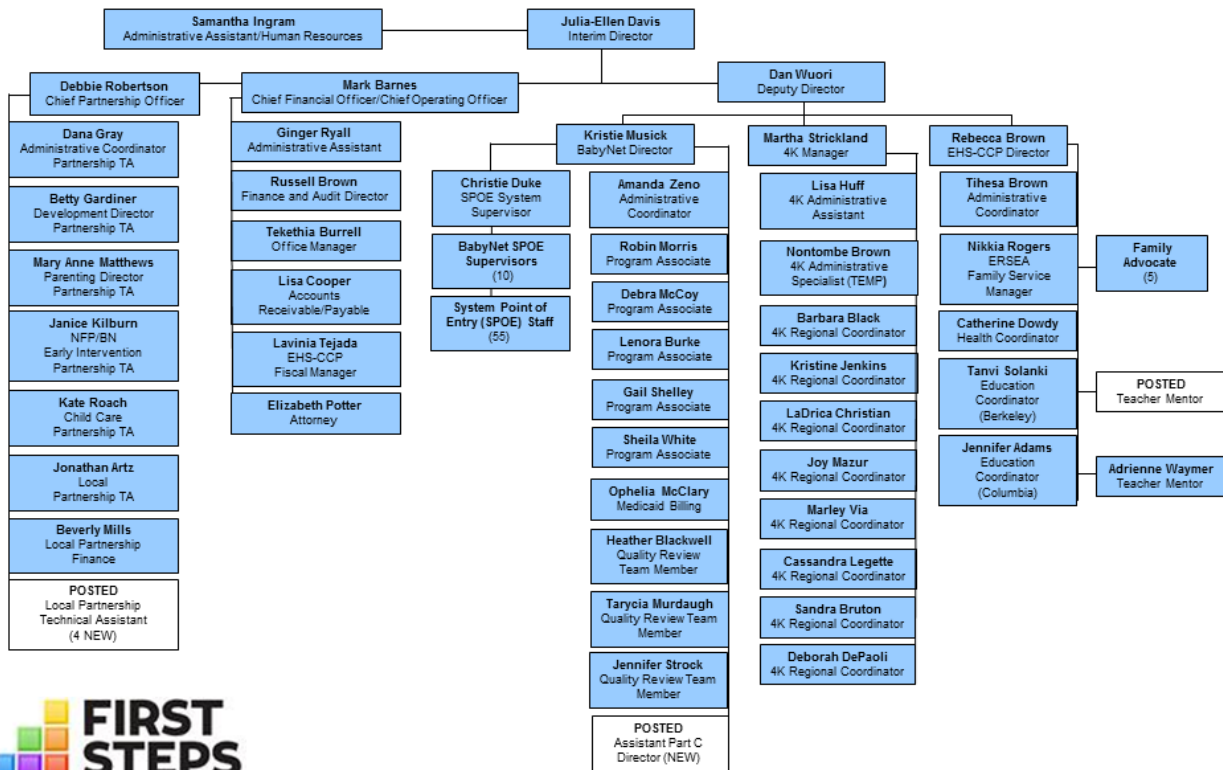

AGENCY NAME:	South Carolina First Steps to School Readiness
AGENCY CODE:	H.62 (Education)	SECTION:	First Steps

The Subcommittee recommends that SC First Steps implement the following revisions in its internal operations:

- Determine the feasibility of instituting a sliding fee scale for BabyNet services;
- Work in collaboration with the SC Department of Education to study and depict the comprehensive costs of public and private sector 4K service provision;
- Develop a pilot project designed to provide startup funds for potential private 4K providers in underserved areas. The development of the pilot project should consider best practices in other states and nontraditional funding mechanisms (e.g. Social Impact Bonds); and
- Work with its local partnerships to establish 4K classrooms in communities where no other providers are available.
