AGENCY’S DISCUSSION AND ANALYSIS

Founded in 1961, USC Aiken is a comprehensive institution with a strong liberal arts and science focus. The institution functions as part of the University of South Carolina system, combining the advantages of a more personalized education afforded by a mid-sized institution with the resources of a major research university. USC Aiken offers bachelor's degrees in nearly 30 areas, including several online bachelor's degree programs, and selected master's degrees designed to enhance and serve our region's advanced workforce needs. With a Fall 2023 enrollment of over 3,800, USC Aiken focuses on personal attention, deployment of engaged learning pedagogies, quality teaching, and an active campus environment. Small classes are taught by professors rather than teaching assistants and afford students one-on-one relationships with experienced faculty, individual advisement, and research opportunities, all of which support the institution's commitment to helping students achieve academic success. USC Aiken has strong ties with the community and offers a diverse non-credit program, including certificate programs and continuing education for members of the surrounding area. U.S. News & World Report ranks USC Aiken among the top Public Regional Universities in the South. Colleges of Distinction has also recognized the university for its continued dedication to High-Impact Educational Practices that influence both student learning and student success. Our Veterans and Military Student Success Center has continued to receive national attention and various accolades with multiple national rankings. USC Aiken is a member of the Council of Public Liberal Arts Colleges (COPLAC), the only institution in South Carolina with that designation. This designation shows a commitment to the critical thinking, communication, and analytical skills necessary to be successful in today's workforce.

USC Aiken's small and active campus environment gives students numerous opportunities to be involved in campus life. Student involvement offerings include community service, Greek life, intramural and club sports, leadership development programs, and more than 95 clubs and organizations – truly something for everyone. On-campus housing can accommodate almost 1,000 students, providing opportunities for students to enjoy the traditional college experience. Our student-athletes, the Pacers, compete in NCAA Division II sports as part of the competitive Peach Belt Conference in baseball, men's and women's basketball, cross country, golf, men's and women's soccer, softball, and volleyball. Through campus programming, a wide range of activities from comedians to cultural events are planned for students, by students, based on their interests.

As we launch our new Strategic Plan: Educate. Innovate. Inspire., USC Aiken continues to strive toward academic excellence with goals and objectives that support delivery of high-level programs and enhancement of initiatives that support student success, retention, progression, and degree attainment. USC Aiken also focuses on increased student engagement in and out of the classroom, on campus, and throughout the community. We aim to align research and new degree programs to meet the needs of our region and support local industry. We are beginning the seventh year of the Aiken Scholars Academy, a high school for gifted students on the USC Aiken campus, offering a unique and engaging educational structure that will introduce students to, and immerse them in, the collegiate environment. Since launching in 2018, the Aiken Scholars Academy - a high school for high-potential students on the USC Aiken campus - has enrolled over 220 dual enrollment students at USCA. Of those, nearly 50 matriculated as degree-seeking students at USCA; three of which have now graduated with a Bachelor's Degree from USCA.

Eighty-six percent of the University's student body is from the state of South Carolina. The population is racially diverse with approximately 38% from under-represented racial and ethnic groups and closely mirrors the racial makeup of the state. However, our student body also spans from 39 different states. Over 23% of our undergraduate degree-seeking students are the first in the family to attend college, and 39% are Pell-eligible. We are proud to support the social mobility of our students and have been recognized by US News & World

AGENCY CODE:	H290	SECTION:	0202B

Report in our ability to do so. The size of the student body at the University has grown in recent years, primarily due to enrollment at the master’s level. Our graduate online business program enrollment remains strong but has somewhat begun to level off. Our undergraduate enrollment has been decreasing slowly in recent years as we approach the national “enrollment cliff” caused by decreasing birth rates years ago. Despite the approaching peak of the enrollment cliff, we had one of our largest freshman classes in 2023 and are expecting an even larger class in 2024. Our newest degree programs continue to grow, and we began offering undergraduate Certificate programs in 2023-24. These certificate programs serve as micro-credentials that will help support and expand the education students receive from their bachelor’s degree programs.

USC Aiken’s efforts to support veteran and military students maintained a Best for Vets ranking and a Military Friendly Gold rating. The USC Aiken ROTC Detachment commissioned 2 Army Lieutenants in academic year 2023-2024: 2nd Lieutenant Fallaw (Fall 23) and 2nd Lieutenant Owens (Spring 24). Additionally, the program has grown to an active roster of 31 cadets and USC Aiken’s relationship with the SC Army National Guard has helped bolster the USC Aiken ROTC Detachment by completing enlistments for 8 of the 31 current cadets over academic year 23-24.

Changing generational approaches to education and exacerbated by the COVID-19 pandemic, undergraduate recruitment and retention have become increasingly challenging. While our Fall 2020 freshman enrollment was stronger than expected, our retention rate of that cohort was very low. Our freshman enrollment has been increasing despite these nationwide challenges. We had one of our largest freshman classes in Fall 2023 and our retention is slowly climbing. Our Retention and Student Success Committee continues to work to identify and reduce barriers to student progression and retention. As a result of this group’s recommendations, 2023-24 saw the launch of a new General Education curriculum. It will take a few years to realize the impact of this change, but our goal is to reduce the time to graduation for our students and to allow them more opportunities for elective courses. We also established university-wide College/School level Retention and Student Success committees to 1) serve as liaisons to the University-level Retention and Student Success committee, and 2) evaluate and identify college- and school-level barriers to progression and retention.

As part of our accreditor’s required Quality Enhancement Plan, the University recently launched a redesign of academic advising, which included creating a centralized advising center staffed with professional advisors to serve first-year students. The new Office of Academic Advising had its comprehensive launch in Fall 2022. We are already seeing gains in retention due to the increased engagement with our new freshmen. In addition to enhanced support provided via academic advising, our EAB Navigate software has provided the ability for faculty to submit alerts on students who are missing class or struggling academically. The Office of Academic Advising and broader Student Success Center work to get the students connected to the resources they need, whether it’s advising, tutoring, counseling, or the many other support resources we offer on campus. We look forward to continued gains in student success, retention, and graduation rates with these more engaging practices.

USC Aiken continues its long tradition of working closely with our regional businesses, industry, and other entities to leverage the strengths of our partnerships. We continue to partner with institutions overseas for study abroad opportunities and student exchanges. The university has also continued to partner with various entities of the surrounding community including Aiken Regional Medical Center, Aiken County Government, Aiken County Public Safety, and the City of North Augusta in programs focused on preventative and rehabilitative services, community-based instruction, and other initiatives. Our Ruth Patrick Science Education Center continues to offer support to the K-12 educational system. Serving an average of over 70,000 visits per year, the Ruth Patrick Science Education Center is a major contributor to increasing STEM education in K-12 in our region. USC Aiken has continued exciting partnerships with the Department of Energy (DOE) and the Department of Defense (DOD) which include new facilities to be constructed on USC Aiken’s campus.

Construction on the Advanced Manufacturing Collaborative (AMC) has continued this year. The AMC will house some facilities for the DOE’s Savannah River National Laboratory and USC Aiken’s ABET-accredited engineering programs and related computational programs. The DOD’s South Carolina National Guard, using federal and state funds, is still in the beginning design stages for a Readiness facility and Cybersecurity Dreamport facility, which will also be the new home of USC Aiken’s cybersecurity programs.

Numerous studies have found that engaged faculty are essential to the success of initiatives related to student success, program development, research advancement, and economic contributions. Competitiveness in the national market to recruit faculty determines the degree to which we can acquire and maintain qualified faculty, particularly in the face of growing enrollment demands. A significant number of faculty and staff retirements and resignations have prompted heightened competition with other institutions for qualified personnel and success in recruiting staff is linked to our ability to compete with the companies and industries located in Aiken and Aiken County as well as many nationwide remote opportunities. Coupled with this are difficulties in attracting and retaining faculty and staff given state pay limitations, the existence of low state appropriations that do not allow for salary increases and inequity / compression adjustments, and burnout from mandated initiatives at the federal, state, and system level. Meanwhile, current faculty have serious concerns about salary compression, the larger issue of disinvestment, and the prospects for future support of their academic work. The USC system recently conducted a multi-year Compensation Project in which staff positions were reviewed and revised into new market titles and salary ranges. The final phase of the project addressed salary compression for incumbent staff; however, this project was not funded by the state or the USC system. Fortunately, USC Aiken was able to address salary compression for many staff in June 2024, investing over $438,000 into staff salaries. There are plans to address faculty salary compression in the 2024-25 year.

To ensure that we provide high quality support to our incoming and continuing students, USC Aiken continues to renovate various buildings across campus. HVAC replacement was completed in the Humanities & Social Sciences Building in Fall 2023. The renovations to the former Business & Education Building gym were completed in Spring 2024 for new administrative offices, which freed up space for a more comprehensive enrollment and welcome center in the Penland Building. The new Center for Engaged Teaching and Learning also opened in the B&E space, which will provide dedicated space for faculty development. The Student Success Center renovations in the Gregg-Graniteville Library are nearing completion. This new space will provide a centralized location for advising, tutoring, academic coaching, and math lab. A new road and utilities for the South Carolina National Guard facilities and athletic facilities are in progress. These dedicated spaces testify to the value USC Aiken places on high-quality instruction and will enhance support of faculty seeking to further adopt and improve high impact practices. USC Aiken values our outdoor space as well and continues to be recognized as a Tree Campus for the eleventh consecutive year.

The challenges facing the University of South Carolina Aiken continue to be associated with those that are generally impacting public higher education institutions in the United States. As student populations decline, universities compete for students in ever-increasing fashion. Large research universities that can best attract out-of-state students have significant pressures applied to focus more on in-state students – the traditional and foundational reason-for-being of South Carolina’s public comprehensive universities. Thankfully, with additional state funding support, USC Aiken has been able to hold tuition flat for the last seven years. This is highly impactful for our student population, who are primarily South Carolina residents. In fact, for the 2023-24 academic year, 31% of all USC Aiken undergraduate SC resident students paid $0 out-of-pocket for tuition and mandatory fees and an additional 54% paid under $2500. Significant financial challenges remain as current state funding at only 21% of the annual revenues against the backdrop of mandated raises for all employees, increases in healthcare premiums, and inflation. DOE and DOD construction projects are requiring significant additional investment by USC Aiken to move athletic facilities, upgrade engineering and computational labs, and tying those projects into the university’s campus. Additional financial challenges are anticipated as students need increasing levels of support in both academic and mental health arenas, and as the state incentivizes university-bound students to attend technical schools instead of universities. USC Aiken supports the engagement of high school students as dual-enrolled students; however, financial strain on the university can arise as dual-enrolled students only contribute 15% of the normal tuition cost and further decrease the population of students who have traditionally attended university for four years. The confluence of these forces creates a challenging environment for our public institutions to flourish.

AGENCY NAME:	University of South Carolina Aiken

In the unlikely event that USC Aiken is unable to achieve its goals and objectives, the public of South Carolina would lose a high quality public post-secondary education at the baccalaureate and master’s level. The resulting economic fallout would be severe, as USC Aiken contributes over $350 million to the state economy, including over $248 million to Aiken County. Additionally, the availability of qualified employees entering the workforce would be significantly impacted. Further, there would be a loss of cultural and athletic events that are crucial to the region’s appeal. There are several things the General Assembly could do to mitigate the risk of such a crisis. First, the General Assembly could continue to increase funding of USC Aiken and public higher education in general to be more in line with investment levels of North Carolina and Georgia. Companion unfunded mandates should be avoided as they mute the impact of funding increases in funding. Recent increased funding for deferred maintenance has been impactful and should be continued.

USC Aiken continues to increase the number of degrees awarded and is committed to answering the call to credential more South Carolinians. With internal investments in student success and external partnerships bringing federal funds to South Carolina, USC Aiken is well positioned for continued and increasing impact on the region and the state.

Agency Mission

Adopted in:

2023

The University of South Carolina Aiken is a regional public comprehensive university that cultivates a diverse population of engaged citizens who provide lifelong contributions in their careers and communities. Our dedicated faculty, staff, and industry partners guide undergraduate and graduate students through a transformative educational journey that uses engaged, accessible teaching and learning practices to blend the liberal arts, sciences, and professional disciplines with research and experiential opportunities that are aligned with economic and societal needs. We are a center for innovation that serves the region through entrepreneurial partnerships, public service, community leadership, relevant research, educational outreach, the visual and performing arts, and intercollegiate athletics.

Agency Vision

Adopted in:

2023

To create a campus community that values each individual, acts as a vibrant hub of activity in our region, partners with government and industry to address societal and economic issues, and transforms undergraduate and graduate students into engaged global citizens.
