Risk Assessment and Mitigation Strategies

The 2023 – 2024 academic year at USC Upstate was a year of opportunity and growth. Some of the biggest challenges we faced during the academic year were brought on by the lingering difficulties from dealing with the COVID-19 pandemic in the preceding years. USC Upstate adjusted how we conducted and delivered our classes, how we supported the work of our students, and how we interacted with each other to carry on the business of USC Upstate. The pandemic and its effects on education and student life required USC Upstate to be nimble and quick-footed. We were able to pivot when necessary and remember to always put people first. From this, we are carrying forward our focus on the importance of collaboration, flexibility, and raising awareness about wellness for students, faculty, and staff.

A drop in enrollment due to the effects of the pandemic and associated events created a financial risk. In order to avoid the risk of not meeting our budget, USC Upstate engaged in a number of mitigation strategies. Perhaps most importantly, we continued to budget for slight decrease in enrollment. This budget model took into account the fact that even if new and continuing enrollment increased this year, we would still be seeing the effects of a three-year drop in enrollment. We were able to meet this decreased budget projection through centralizing efficiencies rather than asking units to cut their budgets. In addition, we engaged in a second round of Institutional Program Review that included both academic and administrative units and prepared to offer a second round of the Voluntary Separation Plan to employees in certain units. These continued efforts allow us to realign resources to better meet emerging needs of the institution. Our careful attention to the budget and realignment efforts have been successful. As we begin the new fiscal year, we have found that our enrollment is flat and that we will be able to meet additional reoccurring budget needs that are essential to the continued health of the institution. We are also setting aside money to support the strategic priorities of the new strategic plan which will launch in Fall 2024.

Significant Events

The Talent Forum created a great new way to engage business and industry with higher education to ensure that we are working collaboratively to meet the needs of the Upstate region.

Together, we worked across campus to right-size our budget through continued implementation of the recommendations from the institutional program review which gave USC Upstate the opportunity to research and realize ways to be more efficient and effective in our programs and course delivery. The process also led to changes in our current academic programs to better meet market need. Through this process, we were innovative and creative in our approaches to problem-solving.

In academic year 2023 – 2024 USC Upstate received over $3.6 million in funded grants. At USC Upstate, we are committed to providing the supports needed for all students to succeed and a sample of these grant awards illustrate this commitment. USC Upstate was awarded a $2.25M grant from the U.S. Department of Education to support its POWER UP program over the next five years. This program seeks to improve retention and on-time graduation rates for USC Upstate students, particularly those who are underserved. USC Upstate was also a subgrant awardee for the Spartanburg Academic Movement (SAM) Movement 2030 funding and received $1.2M over the next few years to support FAFSA completion and Spartanburg County undergraduate college enrollment, persistence, and completion. An additional subgrant from OneSpartanburg to partner with their Re: Degree program allowed the University to hire an advisor to work with adults who stopped out of college to reengage them in finishing their degree. In addition, USC Upstate was awarded a $400,000 grant from the U.S. Department of Justice to help combat domestic violence, dating violence, sexual assault, and stalking on campus.

In Fall 2023, we launched our first doctoral program, a Doctor of Nursing Practice (DNP). The DNP program focuses on developing nurse leaders who are innovative and use nursing practices that are based on evidence to reflect the application of credible research findings.

During the 2023 – 2024 academic year the Strategic Planning Council worked closely with the Chancellor, AASCU Consultants, administrators, faculty, staff, students, other USC Upstate constituents, and local community members on a new plan strategic plan, Greater 2030, which will launch in Fall 2024. The five Strategic Priorities of this plan are: Spartan Distinct, Spartan Recruit, Spartan Success, Spartan Partner, and Spartan Future.
