AGENCY’S DISCUSSION AND ANALYSIS

UNIVERSITY OVERVIEW

The University of South Carolina Beaufort (USCB), a senior campus of the state’s flagship public university system, brings the University of South Carolina’s statewide mission of teaching, research, and public service to the Lowcountry of South Carolina. USCB has one of the oldest traditions of higher education in the nation, dating to the 1795 charter of Beaufort College. Beaufort underwent a profound social revolution during the Civil War, giving rise to Beaufort College’s second legacy: serving as headquarters for the Freedman’s Bureau. From 1865 to 1872, this federal agency brought public education to newly freed slaves. Partnering with the University of South Carolina, state and University leaders discussed ways to increase access to university education in the 1950’s. In 1959, the Beaufort College building welcomed 57 students to USCB, a two-year campus in the USC system. Over the next 30 years, USCB developed an eight-acre campus on the waterfront in Beaufort’s historic district—constructing buildings, renovating a former elementary school and purchasing historic properties. The University began offering classes on Hilton Head Island in 1985. By the late 1980’s, students pursued baccalaureate degrees in several fields through USC Aiken and USC Columbia cooperative programs offered on the USCB campus. In 1994 International Paper donated 80 acres near Hilton Head Island and Dean Jane Upshaw began a campaign for USCB to become a baccalaureate university. With the support of the community, Beaufort County Council, faculty, staff, students, the Beaufort-Jasper Higher Education Commission, and the Trustees of the College of Beaufort, USCB was approved to seek baccalaureate accreditation in 2002. Expanded as a Comprehensive University in August 2004, USCB emerged as South Carolina’s newest accredited four-year university. Today, more than 2,000 ethnically and culturally diverse students pursue 20 baccalaureate degrees and participate in an active program of co-curricular activities and athletics.

In Fall 2024, the University of South Carolina Beaufort’s will celebrate its 20th year of providing higher education to Beaufort County, the SC Lowcountry, and beyond. USCB students are primarily traditional freshmen, transfer, and continuing undergraduate students. Currently, there are approximately 2,188 students enrolled at USCB in baccalaureate and graduate degree programs. Rather than settling for the current state of the University and resting on laurels, USCB administration continues to plan for the future in order to remain current in an ever-changing operating environment. It is imperative that USCB engage in continuous reflection—examining what has led to this success and how to continuously improve offerings and opportunities to foster success of both students and constituents. To that end, USCB has updated its strategic plan and master plans with an eye on furthering the University’s mission of educating residents of the Lowcountry and beyond.

EDUCATING STUDENTS

Of primary concern in all of USCB’s activities is student learning. The high quality of a USCB education is evidenced by the successful SACSCOC level-change, and 100% pass rates on both the National Council Licensure Exam for Registered Nurses (NCLEX) and PRAXIS exams. USCB faculty continue to outperform peers in sponsored awards. USCB has one of the best online Public Health bachelor’s degrees (EduMed) and the top undergraduate nursing program in South Carolina (Nurse.org), and is rated as one of South Carolina’s best online colleges by Forbes.

USCB Faculty have won the Carolina Trustees Professor of the Year award for six consecutive years, and students have been consistently selected as McNair Scholars, with multiple invitations to present at the national McNair conference. Faculty external funding has increase exponentially to over $4.6 in 2023/2024. Research projects include Pritchards Island initiatives, the Maritime Cybersecurity Institute a Fulbright-Hayes South Korean and Asian Literacy Education (SKALE) grant, and research into Gullah-Geechee sustainable farming, environmental monitoring for the Chechessee River, and study of marine acoustics in shallow coastal oceans. Simultaneously, faculty have developed two currently-available master’s degrees (MS in Computation Science and MEd in Literacy) with a third (MAT in Secondary Education) pending CHE and SACSCOC approval.

Student Development is central to providing services geared toward improving students' academic success and persistence to graduation. The Student Success Center expanded its services with a new Director of the First Year Experience, located alongside Academic Advising, the Writing Center, the Tutoring Center, Career Services, and Counseling and Disability Services, to facilitate collaboration and efficiency.

A LOOK TO THE FUTURE OF USCB

As reflected in the USCB Mission statement, the University exists for two groups: its students and the citizens of the Lowcountry of South Carolina. This dual aim defines the fundamental mission of universities historically. Thus, at the core of its mission, the University strives for two things: to graduate a well-prepared student and to enhance the quality of life in its service area. If USCB were unable to continue growing its academic programs, enrollments, and continuing education, artistic, and cultural offerings, the impact on the people of the region and the state would be significant. The quality of life in the region would be greatly diminished as the availability of qualified employees entering the workforce would decrease, continuing education and lifelong learning opportunities would become practically non-existent, and cultural activities that are crucial to the region's residential and tourist appeal would be significantly cut.

To fulfill USCB's Mission, Vision and Strategic Plan, it is essential that the University deliver a robust selection of academic programs aligned with the demands of industry, the community, and the State of South Carolina. Academic units must ensure that programs are current, innovative, and provide high-impact learning experiences.

As outlined in the USCB Strategic Plan, the institution has undertaken initiatives to "identify areas of growth and recommend new programs in consultation with program representatives and community/industry leaders." As part of the academic planning process, the institution has endeavored to lay out its programmatic priorities for the next several years. Academic programs must be responsive to market demand and community needs. Review of prospective programs is based on 1) workforce demand, 2) financial viability for the institution, and 3) current and projected resources for implementation. Each of USCB's campuses has unique characteristics in terms of population, resources, physical attributes, and workforce needs.

AGENCY NAME:	University of South Carolina – Beaufort

While USCB is operating under intense regulatory and financial strain, the University has developed new and innovative approaches to address these challenges. Always staying true to its mission of teaching, research, and service, USCB has made significant progress in achieving strategic goals, especially with regard to growing, diversifying, and supporting the student population. Enrollments have increased across existing majors and new areas of study with appreciable enrollments have been implemented. USCB has improved the quality of academics, facilities have been upgraded, and new facilities have been built. Campus security has been improved on all campuses in order to support the growing enrollments. Increasing instructional and faculty office/research space, upgrading campus technology resources, and enhancing donor stewardship and gift development must continue to be strategic priorities, however, to meet the needs of the expanding student population. USCB has evolved to meet the changing needs of higher education as well as the diverse needs of coastal Carolina and the Lowcountry. The evolution will continue, but USCB will remain a vibrant and exciting place providing extraordinary opportunities for its people—an institution with a powerful future to discover.
